

Nolanville Background

Around the 1840s, pioneers and settlers came to the area, where they lived off the rich land. The town was originally named Nolan Valley, but the name was changed to Nolanville in 1883. In the late 1800s railroad tracks were laid and the first passenger train made its way through the community. That railroad still defines the community today.

The city was incorporated in 1961 and by 1970 it had a population of 902. Population growth remains dynamic and is estimated around 5,000. Nolanville adopted a charter and became a Home Rule City in 2010.

While Nolanville is an older community, it is a “crossroads” community with a younger than average population. Fort Hood is the largest single employer in Texas. Most residents work in manufacturing, retail, construction and service industries.

Council

Roles & Responsibility

Councilmembers are the City's legislators. Their primary duty is policymaking, which includes identifying the needs of local residents, formulating programs to meet the changing requirements of the community, and measuring the effectiveness of ongoing municipal services.

In addition to these everyday duties, councilmembers spend considerable time representing the City in a wide circle of external relationships.

Our Vision

We strive to preserve our small town atmosphere while preparing for growth and future generations, to enhance the beautification of the city, embrace the diversity of its people, and improve the quality of life for our citizens. We aspire to be "A Great Place to Live".

Our Mission

Promote the health, safety, and welfare of our citizens; add value to our community by planning for the future, and encourage community involvement. Being responsive to those we server, while always striving to improve the quality of life for our citizens, and enhance our dedication towards making the City of Nolanville "A Great Place to Live".

"Determination is pursuing goals with energy and focus. It keeps you firmly centered on a chosen purpose."
